

Questions

1. A large aperture hole has a f stop number of f/16.
2. F 5.6 has a smaller aperture hole.
3. F in "F stop" also refers to Focus.
4. You would set the aperture to f/16 to let the least amount of light in.
5. You would set the aperture to f/2.8 to let the most amount of light in.
6. If you use f/32 to focus on an image the depth of field will be more in focus.
7. If you use f/1.4 to focus on an image the depth of field will be less in focus.
8. To capture or freeze something in motion, you would set the shutter speed at 1/125.
9. To create an image blur you might want to set the shutter speed to 4/1.
10. If you have your shutter speed at 1/25 you would want to use a tripod to keep your camera from shaking while you take a picture in motion.